Student Worksheet: Silly Science (pdf) A cool idea from Dennis Moore (John Deere Middle School, Moline, IL) ... To teach his students about dichotomous keys, Dennis Moore challenges his students to develop a key to identify the letters of the alphabet. He provides a list of ten letters (such as A-J) and instructs them to create a key. They must create new groups for the letters, such as curvy or loopy, based on the shapes and lines used to write the letters. After the students have the first ...

Dichotomous keys are based on the use of pairs of contrasting statements. That is, the pairs of statements are designed so that if a characteristic isn't described by one statement, it must be included in the contrasting statement. By setting up pairs of contrasting statements, you can set up a working key that leads the user to the correct identification. For example statement if 1a may be ...
